English

Apostrophes can be used to shorten certain words. This is done by joining together two different words and using an apostrophe to show where the missing letter would normally go.

For example: I am becomes I'm – The apostrophe (') replaces the 'a'.

Fill in the grid below with the different contractions and the longer forms of the contractions.

Contraction	Longer Form

	They are Isn't

Read the following extract of 'The Caravan'.

There has been a problem with this text – all the apostrophes have disappeared!

Your task today is to write out the text below, but to include any missing apostrophes for the contracted words.

Now Mitch, dont go playing up by the pylon,” my Mum had warned me often enough. “Its dangerous. Youll get yourself electrocuted.” Did I listen? Of course I didnt. Most days after school that was exactly where I went. Daft really, but she actually thought that I was doing my homework with Connor. Shes always worrying too much. Ive still not forgotten how she used to tell me not to play under Hanger Bridge by the railway in case the troll snatched me. Of course, I was younger then.

Chapter 5 – extract 2 of 2

The Dovetails' new cottage was a gloomy place. Sunlight was blocked out by the high yew trees that bordered the graveyard, although Daisy's bedroom window gave her a clear view of her mother's grave, through a gap between dark branches. As she no longer lived next door to Bert, Daisy saw less of him in her free time, although Bert went to visit Daisy as often as possible. There was much less room to play in her new garden, but they adjusted their games to fit.

What Mr Dovetail thought about his new house, or the king, nobody knew. He never discussed these matters with his fellow servants, but went quietly about his work, earning the money he needed to support his daughter and raising Daisy as best he could without her mother.

Daisy, who liked helping her father in his carpenter's workshop, had always been happiest in overalls. She was the kind of person who didn't mind getting dirty and she wasn't very interested in clothes. Yet in the days following the funeral, she wore a different dress every day to take a fresh posy to her mother's grave. While alive, Mrs Dovetail had always tried to make her daughter look, as she put it, 'like a little lady', and had made her many beautiful little gowns, sometimes from the offcuts of material that King Fred graciously let her keep after she'd made his superb costumes.

And so a week passed, then a month, and then a year, until the dresses her mother had sewn her were all too small for Daisy, but she still kept them carefully in her wardrobe. Other people seemed to have forgotten what had happened to Daisy, or had got used to the idea of her mother being gone. Daisy pretended that she was used to it too. On the surface, her life returned to something like normal. She helped her father in the workshop, did her schoolwork and played with her best friend, Bert, but they never spoke about her mother, and they never talked about the king. Every night, Daisy lay with her eyes fixed on the distant white headstone shining in the moonlight, until she fell asleep.

Inference Questions

- 1) Was the Dovetail house a nice place or a nasty place to live? Find evidence in the text to support your answer.
- 2) Daisy had to stop playing with Bert because her garden was too small. Do you agree with this statement? Explain your answer.
- 3) 'What Mr Dovetail thought about his new house, or the king, nobody knew.' What do you think Mr Dovetail's thoughts about the King were?
